WASHINGTON 25, D. C.

TO: All Delegates, NSA Field Commanders Conference

Of the myriad problems involved in the conduct of the National COMINT effort, none are more important than those which relate to our operations in the field. I consider no problems to be more deserving of our time and energies or more demanding of our talents and ingenuity. Moreover, I feel that the solutions for these problems can best be found only after we have reached a common appreciation of them at our highest command and operational levels.

It was with the above in mind that I called you here from all over the world. It is to you--our commanders and our leading operations personnel--that I look first for assistance in reaching our common objectives. I am confident that the direct, personal exchange of views and ideas made possible by your presence here will add to a greater understanding of those objectives and will enhance our progress toward their attainment.

With great personal pleasure, I extend to you a very warm welcome to this conference. I am most anxious that you find this occasion both pleasant and rewarding; to this end, the facilities of my headquarters and the services of my entire staff are at your disposal.

Lieutenant General, US Army
Director
